

Shen MingEr (Mar. 7th, 2004)

He has cerebral palsy and is almost blind. He doesn't hold toys, but he is trying to do it when we hold his hand. His left hand is stronger than the right. He doesn't like loud music. High color contrast and sparkly toys are easier for him to see. It seems that he is peaceful with his roommates. He likes calm rather than noisy surroundings. It seems that he likes toys with squeaky rather than chime sounds.

Shen WenShi (Feb . 11th, 2002)

He used to use a gait trainer (walker), but recently hasn't enjoyed it. So, he is now using a regular wheelchair. He enjoys interaction; for example, he likes to be helped to participate in action songs. He is always smiling. He loves to eat. He enjoys holding toys and listening to music. He is a good sleeper.

Shen YuanSuo (Aug. 2nd, 2007)

He is able to sit up by himself. He doesn't take a nap while other kids in his room are asleep . But he is active, going from lying down to sitting up. He likes most foods, except yogurt. He loves to listen to music and and dance in his wheelchair. One of his favorite activities is to go for walk outside. He smiles a lot when he is given special attention. He is loved by our volunteers.

Shen JiaHe (June 28th, 2007)

He used to have a lot of seizures but he is much better now. So he smiles a lot nowadays. He needs a lot of support when he is sitting up in his wheelchair. But he is often able to hold his head up now. He enjoys group activities such as listening to music and stories.

Shen TongLiang

TongLiang is using a gait trainer (walker) and moves all around in the hall. He tries to talk when he is happy. He likes to crawl out of his room when no one watches him. He also likes to interact with other kids in his room. He likes to be taken for walks in his wheelchair, especially outside. He loves to eat. He enjoys toys that make noise, such as hand bells.